He was there when the Utah boys got in and assisted The Herald in extending to them the glad hand of welcome.

Seattle Is Prosperous.

Seattle Is Prosperous.

Seattle Mr. McCornick describes as the liveliest place he found on his travels. All the commerce of Aiaska and the northwest passes through the gates of Seattle and pays toll as it passes. It has the air of a great city. It is developing into a great lumber mart. He saw immense vessels leading with lumber for South Africa, South America, Australia and Germany. Large flouring mills were also grinding out shiploads of flour for the Asianic trade. The assay office at that point is doing a big business, too, for the Klondike miners. Portland is slow, but has an air of solidity that impresses a business man, Gregories trade with Utah is principally in lumber and cattle and will continue to grow as this country is developed.

asy nothing. There was a big wheat crop in Oregon.

As to general business conditions, Mr. McCornick is highly pleased. He sees no elements of danger anywhere—no boom. Our prosperity is due, he thinks, to a natural reaction from the hard times. The problem of the large corporations, he thinks, will settle itself in good time.

good time.

Mr. McCornick was accompanied on his travels by his daughter. Miss Anna, who enjoyed it as much as her father. Both are full of enthusiasm over the trip, especially the ocean trip between San Francisco and Victoria.
